An almost universal dissatisfaction upon the part of teachers with what they rightly judged a vague and indefinite course of study; a laxness or looseness on his part in the enforcement of rules (a strong contrast to his predecessor in this regard); a very visible falling off in the enthusiasm and interest of parents and pupils; a latitude allowed to eachers in examinations, not consistent with the advancement of their pupils, and leading to a desire for high averages instead of high excellence. All these things have necessarily led to carelessness or listlessness upon the part of many, and while it had no effect upon the great majority of the corps (who, I believe, would discharge their duty as well without as with a superintendent), yet the influence could not fail to make tself felt, as "a little leaven leaveneth a whole lump." There may be some to deny this statement, and therefore, in order to convince even the most stubborn, it is only necessary to refer to that organization known as the Teachers' association. LUCIUS Morse leaves the city toing that I supposed I had exceeded my-self in politeness toward him. For this I had many reasons. First, he was not the one I originally intended as counsel for the city. Believing that changes in the attorney's office are not beneficial to the city, I wished the fermer attorney to continue, but the salary was reduced one thousand deliars per annum, and he would not hold the position any longer. I then, from a long acquainfanceship with Mr. Hauson, confiding in his ability and knowing his unswerving honesty, requested him to take the position: and if I have, ever since he entered on his duties, been discourteous, lacking in civility, or seemingly exhibited the least distrust in the advice or opinions given by him, I sincerely apologize to him, and assure him that it was not, at any it for the benefit of all the orphan institutions of the city. done, and that judgments go daily against the city, is it not plain that the holders of judgments are as likely to be anxious to scale, as you have desired the bond or coupon-holders to let the city loose from what in most cases parties must have known the city was not liable for. When the finance commit-tee last year favored the employment of Judges Ellet and Jackson, they acted wisely, but unfortunately the council did not act in the matter (further than appointing a committee). Their employment I did not veto. It was not seted on by the council, so that the veto referred to a few days ago by a committee was not located properly. Employ-ment of counsel to defend the city against the bonds issued in 1886-7-8-9 unless issued secording to law, I will always favor. Such an arrangement as was attempted last March, when I vevitation be extended to all to attend and toed the assistant attorneyship, I will aiways oppose. Had council been employed last summer to defend the bond suits, Mr. Hanson could have

advantage of. I will co-operate cordially with you, but will not act in these case without the consent of the general council. Very respectfully, JOHN LOAGUE, Mayor. Councilman Cochrane moved that Mr. Hanson's resignation be accepted, to take effect when his successor is elected. Councilman Camp said they would like to gratify this wish of the mayor, which was personal in its nature, but that the interest of the city required the council to accept the resignation, as the gentleman did not wish to longer attend to the city's litigation. Alderman Metcalf concurred with the councilman, believing that while the personal relations between Mayor loague and Mr. Hanson were of a very pleasant character, still there was no official harmony between them. He, therefore, seconded the resignation. The question was then put and the resignation of Mr. Hanson unanimously accepted. Councilman Cochrane and Alderman Metcalf were appointed to wait on the mayor and ascertain if he were prepared to nominate a gentleman to the office of city attorney. These gentle men reported that the mayor had no further communication for the council.

Therefore the joint session adjourned. Weather clear and pleasant. MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.
